Delivers Non-political Address at Lincoln and is Moved to Tears
---Let the People Rule.

Lincoln, Neb. 3.—W. J. Bryan last night issued the following signed statement, claiming his election:

"Our fight is won and we await the verdict with confidence. The people will not be deceived by the padded straw votes published by the partisan newspapers, by the sham bets of Wall street gamblers, or the boasting of the panic-stricken Republican leaders.

"The Republican candidate has behind him an array of office holders, trust magnates, most of the leading newspapers and an enormous campaign fund so known that he dare not tell the public know where it comes from until after they have voted and that part of it that is contributed to the Republican congressional committee will not be known even then.

"I have behind me the awakened conscience of the country and the sentiment in favor of popular government, which demands the election of United States senators by direct vote.

"I have behind me victims of trusts, who are pleading for relief, the laboring men whose petitions have been rejected by the Republican party, the depositors whose savings are jeopardized by the carelessness of bank officials, and the consumers, who have been exploited by the beneficiaries of the high tariff.

"All of these people see a Democratic victory, their only hope of relief and they know that with the election of a Democratic President and a Democratic congress, backed by a popular verdict in behalf of Democratic policies, the way is open for remedial legislation.

"The Republican leaders have been weighed in the balance and have been found wanting; they have betrayed the rank and file of their own party and have left the Democratic party to voice the honest sentiment of the honest citizenship of the country, Republican and Democratic.

"And I may add, we expect in this campaign the votes of all reformers, for the Democratic party is the only party that can bring at once the reforms which the people need, and I am sure that that the reformers cannot be deceived by the leaders, who, pretending to represent labor, are now trying to assist the Republican party, which is the open foe of labor, and having posed as enemies of the trusts, now join hands with Rockefeller, Harriman and Carnegie in supporting the Republican party, which is today the champion and bulwark of all the trusts.

"What a spectacle the Republican campaign presents at its close, the Republican candidate trying to repudiate the support of the trust magnates, who are coming out from under cover and announcing their loyalty to him and at the same time trying to claim the support of labor leaders like Mitchell and Duncan and Morris, who are openly repudiating them. Surely the hour has come for a return of the government to the hands of the people. Let the people rule."

ELECTION NEWS TONIGHT ON ADVOCATE SCREEN

Everybody is invited to come to this office tonight to receive the election returns.

The news will be flashed by the Advocate's stereopticon upon a huge screen in front of the office, and returns will also be posted in the Advocate's brilliantly light bulletin windows.

No expense has been spared to give the people reliable election news. Besides the Western Union Telegraph service, this newspaper will receive bulletins at frequent intervals from the United States Independent, Central Union and Newark Telephone Companies' long distance lines. Special correspondents of this paper have been instructed to wire the returns at the earliest possible moment.

Besides the telegraph service, election news will be received over four telephone lines leading into the Advocate office.

Owing to the mammoth ballot, the local returns will be late, but early in the evening the wires will begin to bring returns from the east.

Come to the Advocate office tonight and watch the returns from the big screen and from the Advocate windows. Everybody will be welcome.

IMMENSE VOTE IS BEING POLLED OVER ENTIRE COUNTRY---HOW SOME OF NOTED MEN CAST THEIR BALLOTS

MACK'S ESTIMATE.

New York, Nov. 3.—National Chairman Mack of the Democratic National Committee, said last night:

"From advices received by me today, I estimate that Mr. Bryan will have 333 votes in the Electoral College. It will be a landslide. We will carry New York, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska and Wisconsin."

"The tide has been setting our way for weeks, and it became a tidal wave when John D. Rockefeller issued his endorsement of Taft. The doubtful states outside of those I mention will all return substantial majorities for Mr. Bryan."

"Columbus, Nov. 3.—Advices received from all over the state by the Republican and Democratic committees at noon today indicate an immense vote is being cast. All the cities except Cincinnati report much scratching and indicate that both Republicans and Democrats are cutting their tickets. Both Harmon and Harris are being cut in Columbus, Toledo and Cleveland. Cincinnati dispatches indicate that the German and negro vote there is being cast straight. The German vote is stated to be going almost solidly for Harmon and Republicans fear that this may hurt Taft in his home city, as many voters are casting straight ballots rather than run chances of cutting. On the other hand, reports from the country districts indicate that Harris is running ahead of the balance of the Republican ticket in the rural section, owing to local option sentiment. Sunshine and fine weather suppose you cast a good Taft vote?" made on the result of the election in was asked when he came out. "Now, New York state."

"Washington, Nov. 3.—Friends you boys can't get a word on that," replied. "I can't talk about it." Roosevelt will entertain an election and he winked. When Rockefeller's night party at the White House to automobile pulled up outside the night. Among the guests will be 30 men were inside and several members of the cabinet, other 30 in line outside. As soon as the high officials of the government and oil king descended three men offered "Re him their places in line. "Not a bit freshments" will consist chiefly of Electoral votes.

PROGRAM TONIGHT AT TAYLOR HALL

In addition to the entertainment program already announced for Taylor Hall tonight, Prof. W. W. Flora has promised a solo and a fine illustrated song with stereopticon views has been selected.

The Gym Quartet also will give an illustrated song, "Just Some One." It is a popular sentimental song and has a catchy air. It is one of the kind of songs that leads the boys to do their best.

Newark will want to hear Dr. Emily W. Hunt, president of Denison university. He will speak at the men's meeting Sunday at 3 p. m. in Taylor Hall.

The following relating to the improvements which are being made at Buckeye Lake is from the pen of Commodore Charles J. Iguchi, well known to many Newark people, and was published in the Ohio State Journal:

The case in which is fast drawing to a conclusion the interest of those in the service of central Ohio who enjoy some of the best of Buckeye Lake. In the past two months, extensive improvements have been made in the protection of the premises the case in question at Buckeye Lake under plaintiff has been greatly injured in his business and in his credit and reputation of the experiments which will protect and brought into public service completed, due to the outdoor drift, injury and distract with and embarrass a person of spending around Buckeye Lake his neighbors and acquaintances money can be safely invested in this and other good and worthy citizens of this state to his damage in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for which he asks judgment.

which have often existed there, owing to the water and high water, first making and then destroying the banks.

The improvements now under way are only a part of the general program beautification and permanency which the present state board has planned. It is easy to understand of many of the plans but those interested in the lake need assured that their needs will be taken care of if reasonable time be allowed.

Some criticism has come up over the fact that the water in the lake has been down for some time—fishermen have complained.

While it is a fact that no fish have died through these conditions as yet, it is possible that none will, as there is a vast amount of water in Buckeye Lake yet and will be all winter. It was necessary to draw the water off at this time to make the needed improvements and owing to the condition of the banks at the lake and the old waterwheel it was imperative that no time be lost in getting them under way.

Even if there is a loss of some fish, even if boating is interfered with for a few months this year, there is bound to be some benefit to everyone through the grand improvements being made and some sacrifice was necessary as the work being done could not be done during the winter time. As soon as the ice comes on the streams in Buckeye Lake will be cut off. The state board has plans for this work and will see that it is done right and thoroughly.

The present board has the work well in hand and knows what to do. The experience of the present board is a big item and I am sure it will not be overlooked by those who are truly interested in the lake's welfare.—Chas. D. Lynch, in Ohio State Journal, November 2.

THE NEWARK DAILY ADVOCATE

AMUSEMENTS

MANAGER MOUSE SECURES "THE WOLF."

On Monday night, Nov. 9, "The WOLF," which was received with great enthusiasm in New York, and running a long run in Chicago, will be presented by the Messrs. Shubert at the Auditorium theater.

The drama is one of the most brilliant and the most unusual that has been seen on the stage in years and having been made with the Western Union Telegraph company for the fall report.

THE ORPHEUM THEATER.

The bill at the Orpheum the first half of this week is up to the standard and amused the large audiences yesterday. Turner and Dunbar Bros., the feature act, is by far the greatest French Canadian, and his dialect in act of its kind seen here this season.

WILLIAM COURTEY, WILLIAM ROSELL AND CHARLES RIEGEL. In the Sensational Dramatic Success, "The Wolf," Which Comes to the Auditorium Theater on Monday Evening, Nov. 9.

This role is one of the richest and best things of the kind in modern stage drama. Frances Ring, beautiful as a picture, is seen to splendid advantage as Hilda, and Charles Riegel's efforts as the mad old Scotchman are a revelation and have astonished critics and the general public. Walter Hale, another sterling actor, who has been gaining new laurels in a new part, and Sheridan Block, a tried and true actor, has found a splendid opportunity for good work as the trader, while William Rosell has made much of part of young Henley. The piece is gorgeously staged and is full of poetry and beautiful stage pictures.

AUDITORIUM THEATER.

Ye Colonial Stock Co. entered into its week's engagement at the Auditorium theater to a well filled house. The play, "Slaves of the Orient," is a most interesting story, telling as it does the strange adventures of an officer of the United States navy. From a meritorious point of view much could be said in its favor.

With the Colonial Stock Co. is Miss Dorothy Smith and Mr. Charles E. Siddons, artists surely in all the word implies. Miss Smith has been seen in this city before and in her previous work gained popularity and much favor. In the character of Zuleika she won new laurels and many friends. Mr. Siddons is a young actor possessed of many attributes to the real artist, an excellent reader and a fine voice. The other members of the cast, Mr. Waterhouse, Miss Lee Kathryn, Frank Dean and Claude Kelly proved themselves capable in every particular.

Mr. Bonner, the manager of this excellent company, deserves much credit for adding real vaudeville features and the Unicycle Hax is the wonderful stunts on the Unicycle and the opening number, a waltz clog under a spot light, is a very clever piece of work. The German comedian and the straight man to some very rapid fire conversation, being full of new and funny jokes, which are very rare things nowadays. Cecilia Jefferson, the lady who sings cool songs (and she sings them) has the reputation of being the best lady clown in the show business, and has won much applause. The trouble with her act is that she is very stingy with her gift as the audiences would like a god, dead more of it.

Ed. Lazelle is a very clever slack wire performer and shows beyond doubt that the audience was fond of that kind of an act.

Lamont and Mallen's musical act is very entertaining all the way through. Each plays on quite a number of different instruments, inspired with a little comedy.

The moving pictures the first half of this week, are very interesting and amusing. Mr. Moore has secured for the extra attraction Friday night an act that you will all want to see—the two boxing boys, eight and nine years of age, will put on a fine bout.

Don't forget the election returns are received here all night tonight by special wire.

GREAT SOUTHERN THEATER. The Proving.

By GRANT OWEN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"I don't just know how to explain it," said Margaret West.

She turned her eyes from the cool, blue stretches of the lake and looked thoughtfully at Graham, who, perched on the rail of the boathouse, was absently pulling at the fingers of the gauntlets in his hands.

The young man strolled, and a slow smile, in which there was a hint of grimness, curved the corners of his mouth.

"I rather think I understand," he said quietly. "You are disappointed in me. Isn't that it?"

She was silent for a moment.

"Yes, that is it," she said at length, and at something in her voice his face hardened.

"Then you wanted me to enter that road race Thursday?" he asked.

"Yes," she said simply.

"And because I won't?"

She turned to him quickly.

"It isn't that I'm tremendously interested in that race," she interrupted him, "nor that I care a snap whether or not you win it. The point is—the point is—"

She paused; her brows drew together in a little frown; her fingers toyed nervously with a bit of wisteria she had broken from the vine that covered the porch.

"I wanted you to be in it—to go over the course. That would be sufficient," she finished.

"I see," he said. "You wanted me to disprove these stories that are going the rounds about my lack of nerve. Is that it?"

"Yes," she said again. He drew himself up. His shoulders were squared. His attitude was that of a man summoning to his aid all his moral courage.

"The stories they have told you are quite correct," he said, somewhat huskily.

"Oh!" she said, and in her voice there was something of pain and something, too, of weariness, as if she had been expecting this very thing and yet was unwilling, even in her preparedness, to hear it.

"They are perfectly right in what they say of me," he went on calmly. "I have lost my nerve. There's nothing would tempt me to take up road racing again."

"Nothing?" she questioned.

"Nothing," he repeated inexorably. "I am not in the habit of offering an explanation nor any excuses for my position in the matter. But I would like you to know the circumstances. Would you care to listen to them?"

"If you choose to tell me," she said.

"You remember that race three years ago over the Meadow island course?" he said. "Well, it was then it happened. Stanley was with me. He and I had a good lead. We were tearing past the curve at the old church, let-ing out the car for all there was in her. As we swung that turn I saw a child just in front of us not twenty feet away, it seemed.

"How she got past the ropes that held the crowd back I can't say, but there she was right in the course and not a ghost of a show apparently of escaping us. I don't know to this day what saved her. I only know there was a great gasping sigh from Stanley and a groan from the crowd. I tried to swing out for her, but there was so little time. Anyway, it was some sort of a special Providence that saved her. We shot past her, so close that I shut my eyes."

The girl saw a nervous tremor shake the big shoulders. Her eyes narrowed. "But the child wasn't hurt, you say?" she asked.

"Not in the least. But those few seconds were enough for me. I couldn't stand them again. That is why I am out of the game—a quitter, if you choose to put it that way."

The girl said nothing. She sat looking out at the sparkling lake with troubled eyes.

At length Graham arose.

"I don't blame you in the least for thinking of me as you do," said he, "nor for being disappointed. Goodby."

He slid from the rail and went down the steps to the big road ear standing in the driveway. He had pulled on his gauntlets and was just climbing into the ear when around the corner of the boathouse came a wild eyed, disheveled gardener from one of the houses down the street.

"Mr. Graham, sir," he panted, "will you be gettin' the doctor, quick! Tim Conley's fell from the stagin' on the stable where they're paintin' an' he's hurt bad, sir. 'Tis dead he'll be in ten minutes if the doctor's not fetched before that. Hurry! For God's sake, hurry!"

"I'll have him here in five," Graham called, and opened up the big car.

It sprang forward like a thing alive and went tearing down the driveway in a great cloud of dust.

Margaret, who had run to the edge of the veranda, saw him swing into the roadway beyond, and the drifting dust while rose high above the poplars told of the terrific pace he was setting.

It was four minutes later, after a nervous pacing of the veranda, that she heard the whirr of the approaching car again. She ran down the steps and hurried along the drive to the roadway. Up the hill, with honking horn, came a dull, black streak. She could see Graham driving low over the steering wheel and the doctor, helpless and begrimed with dust, clinging desperately to the seat beside him.

Then out of the crossroad just below where she stood and directly in the path of the coming cyclone came a rattling farm wagon, driven by old Mrs. Clark, who was as deaf as a post. The girl covered her eyes and screamed. There were a wild yell, the sound of splintered wood and a terrific grinding crash.

When Margaret looked again the wagon alone was in the road. The automobile, turned on its side, lay against the shattered fence. In the field beyond lay two huddled figures.

the parade which followed his automobile from the Union station, however, many political transparencies were carried.

Mr. Bryan's speech was greeted with vociferous cheers. The candidate was moved to tears as he made an affectionate reference to his wife, and when he closed the demonstration accorded him the salutation which was such as he rarely had experienced in his three campaigns.

MR. BRYAN'S SPEECH.

"I believe I am going to be elected," he said. "More than that, I believe it is going to be more than a bare victory. I believe that there is a stirring of the conscience of the American people, a moral awakening, an uprising that means a sweeping victory, and I will swear in your presence that no one who votes for me will ever have occasion to be ashamed of the vote he casts."

Mr. Bryan continued:

"My friends, I am at the end of my third presidential campaign. Tomorrow the 100,000 of votes will decide whether I am to occupy the seat that Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln occupied (applause and cries of 'you will'). You will have your part in the victory, or that defeat. It may be that the election may turn on Nebraska, and it may be that Nebraska will turn on votes so few in number, that the city of Lincoln may decide my fate. If this decides that I shall be added to the list of presidents of the United States added to the list of those that have furnished a president, I shall rejoice with you. If, on the other hand, the election shall be against me, I can feel that I have let nothing undone that I could have done to bring success to my cause. And, my friends, I shall find private life a field of joy that I shall not miss the presidency."

"I have been the child of fortune from my birth. God gave me into the keeping of a Christian father and a Christian mother. They implanted in my heart the ideals that have guided my life. When I was in law school, I was fortunate, as I was in my college days, to fall under the influence of men of ideals who have helped to shape my life, and when but a young man not out of college yet, I was guided to the selection of one who for 24 years has been my faithful helper. No accidental victory could have brought her to me and no defeat can take her from me. I have been blessed with a family. My children are with me to make glad the declining years of their mother and myself."

"When you first knew me they called me in derision the boy orator of the Plate. I have outlived that title and my grandchildren are now growing up about me. I repeat that I have been fortunate indeed. I have been abundantly rewarded for what little I have been able to do, and my ambition is not so much to hold any office, however great, as it is to know my duty and to do it, whether in public life or as a private citizen."

"If I am elected, I shall be absent from you but for years, and I am destined you will let me to hear my de- tention. And I will say to your friends, that the affection that my compatriots have shown is to me dearer than all earthly affections. And my high ambition is to deserve the continuance of that affection. I have been tempted by the demonstrations that have been given in other parts of the country, but I will say to you, my friends, that in 12 years, and in three continents, I have never had a welcome anywhere more generous, more sympathetic than you have given me in Newark tonight."

"I am going to be elected."

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH BY NEWARK AUTOISTS

Roadster Strikes Gravel Stretch and Skidding Into Culvert Turns Turn With Men Under Machine.

The skidding of Will Davis's automobile when it struck a stretch of gravel road, and the upsetting of the machine when it ran into a culvert, almost resulted in the death of Lon Ryan and the injury of Will Davis and Paul Gray, Monday evening about 6 o'clock.

The party, in the high power roadster owned by Mr. Davis, had been riding for some time, and when in front of the Thomas Kane residence on the Hebron road, five miles west of Newark, they slowed down on account of the gravel that had been placed on the road. This was probably all that saved the men from death.

As soon as it struck the gravel the car skidded, and before it could be stopped it smashed into a culvert that had been recently built, and upset. Ryan was thrown against a wire fence and falling back into the road was caught under the car as it toppled over. Gray was also caught under the machine but soon worked himself loose and Davis was thrown into the road away from the machine.

Hearing the groans of Ryan the men jumped to his assistance and after struggling for several minutes they lifted the machine sufficiently that Ryan could be extracted. He was hurried to Newark and taken to the Sanitarium where an examination showed that his right shoulder was dislocated and his right arm was broken above the elbow. Drs. P. H. Cosner and D. M. Smith attended him. Mr. Gray was cut about the mouth and his legs were badly skinned and bruised but he escaped serious injury. Mr. Davis was injured about the back but fortunately he also escaped serious injury.

GRANVILLE

Granville, O., Nov. 3.—The Hallowe'en celebration in Granville was the "safest" ever held in the village. It was celebrated in the usual way with various house parties, and little groups of mischievous boys giving vent to their pent up frolicsome nature by annoying residents in different parts of the village with tick-tacks and corn throwing. According to all reports the small boys were orderly and did not resort to extremes in carrying out their youthful pranks. Mayor B. I. Jones, before the celebration had sent out word all along the line that he did not propose to put on any extra police, and that he would trust to the boys' honor not to commit any unlawful pranks. This confidence was not betrayed as evidenced from the fact that not a single student took part in any of the usual pranks indulged in on Hallowe'en, and the town boys also behaved themselves in a manner that has elicited considerable favorable comment. Several of the college fraternities had functions and the younger set spent one of the most enjoyable Hallowe'ens in the history of the old town.

The Republicans of Granville and Granville township held a meeting at the town hall on Monday night which was attended by a large number, the hall being well filled. Attorneys Charles Montgomery and L. C. Russell of Newark were scheduled to speak at the meeting and both made speeches on the issues of the day. Prof. J. L. Gilpatrick acted as chairman of the meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting a number of the Republicans of the village formed and paraded through the principal streets, and burned considerable real fire. The speakers devoted most of their time during their talks to answering, or trying to answer a number of questions that had been asked them by Democrats.

The Board of Control held a meeting on Monday night at which the captains and managers of the track, baseball and basketball teams were elected. For captain of the basketball team Harry Pine was elected, while Captain Rogers will steer the track team to victory and W. H. Morris will be manager. For the baseball team Vic Turner was selected and James Adam was selected manager. Lawrence Mason and son, Henry, of Cleveland, who have been visiting friends in the village during the past several weeks, have returned home.

WATCH BACKACHE

This Simple Home Mixture is Said to Prevent Serious Kidney Trouble Every Time.

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home is stated by a well known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency, (especially at night) painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kurgon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decomposes and settle about the joints and muscular tissues, causing the untold suffering of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal, notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys" is now the physician's advice to his patients.

Music and singing comprised part of the evening's amusements. The Apollo quartet rendered selections which were enjoyed by all. An old fashioned lunch was served. TONIGHT

CHARM of the HAGUE

BY DELIA AUSTRIAN

The National Monument Commemorating the Victories of William Frederick

THE HAGUE, besides being known for its beauty, is admired because it has been made attractive in spite of certain limitations. Though an old city, it is cut by so many dykes and dams that it has been no easy problem to solve how to make it attractive. Many of the streets have to serve a double use of sidewalk and thoroughfare. The most crowded are nearly always for the unloading of freight and the docking of boats. The Hague was originally a hunting resort of the Counts of Holland and was called the Count's Enclosure or the Hedge. These hunting grounds were so extensive and beautiful that as early as the middle of the thirteenth century they were made the chief seat of Dutch rule. Later it was denied a seat in the Dutch government and so remained a village until Louis Bonaparte, when ruler, granted it the rights of a town. But in spite of the limitations put upon the town the beautiful dense woods and its central location helped to develop the town with small effort.

Everywhere the streets are paved with good, strong bricks, even when the streets are so narrow that two can't pass with difficulty. Though the city has grown until all parts are alive with noise, one of the great open squares, called the Plein, is now the chief center of traffic. The square is adorned with a statue of Prince William. In his right one niche is a figure of the Prince with a seated statue of his wife and daughter on either side. The statue is surmounted by Justice holding a flag in one hand and a scroll in the other. On the pedestal are inscribed the favorite words of Prince William: "Sæculi tranquillæ in unda (the wise man is tranquil in hours of disturbance). The pedestal is also adorned with reliefs illustrating important incidents in the Prince's life.

On the west side of the Plein opposite the Mauritshuis is the Colonial Office, a large and imposing looking structure. At the southwest angle is the office of the ministry of Justice, which is a handsome building of brick and white stone in the Dutch Renaissance style. On the opposite side of the Lange Pante is the war office, which in the time of the republic was the residence of the deputies of Rotterdam. On the east side of the Plein is a handsome edifice of brick, once the home of the Amsterdam deputies and which is now used to contain the state archives.

Here are seen a wonderful collection, representing Dutch history, the most interesting document in the collection is a copy of the peace of Westphalia.

On the north side is a most attractive building with large bay windows overlooking the dam. It is a literary club and includes many of the foremost Dutch authors in its membership. Strangers are only admitted through the invitation of members.

Close by, between the Plein and the Vyver, is a large house standing alone. It overlooks the open court on one side and the dam on the other. This large and handsome house was built for the Count John Maurice, of Nassau, the Dutch West India Company's governor of Brazil, though later given to the city to be used for a gallery. Glancing down from one of the windows overlooking the Vyver, one sees a miniature island, called the Island des Cygnes, where are kept a number of handsome swans. It is difficult to find another museum that contains such a fine collection of Dutch masters.

One of the most famous is Rembrandt's large canvas called the "Lesson in Anatomy." It does not aim to be poetic, but is a wonderfully realistic study. Its large canvas was designed to commemorate a body of surgeons in Amsterdam. In their countenances are depicted the real bourgeoisie, the common everyday life and for this reason this picture is considered by many Rembrandt's masterpiece. The group is so natural, true and interesting that although the eight men are exceedingly different, a common purpose dominates the picture. The theme is in the whole dramatically represented. It is the triumph of truth in art. The central theme of this large canvas is that of Professor Tulip and the subject upon whom he is operating. The light falls upon the bare chest of the patient, making it appear like a piece of Carrara marble. The "Lesson in Anatomy" is a mass of superb lines, which is enhanced by a luminosity, an incomparable brilliancy of tone, a transparency among the shadows that are marvelous.

This picture was bought by King Wilhelm for 32,000 dollars, though it could not be had for a million today.

Shrown in the Temple, which was found in the Louvre during the first empire, is an older copy than the lesson in Anatomy. Rembrandt painted it as early as 1631. The picture possesses a wonderful warmth and lovely transparency. Few of the great Dutch master's works have a more genuine feeling. The face of the old man is brilliant with light, it is splendid with its inspired expression and long white beard. The Virgin has a modest, sweet expression dressed as she is in a simple blue robe. The group of figures in the background are simple and well drawn. The Rembrandt collection is wonderfully fine and extensive.

On one wall is a portrait of the master when he was a young object. The artist aimed to depict the character found in his countenance rather than give expression to a good looks. Nearby is a wonderful pedestal of David playing the lute before

Saul. This is the most powerful of the biblical compositions, the work of the great Dutch master's genius. The contrast is as beautiful as it is striking. David is typified as a handsome youth posessed of energy and many vigor. Saul is an old man with a long beard and a face marked with lines of character and care. His expression shows that he is both pleased and inspired by the strains of the young talented harpist.

A rival to this picture is a painting of Homeric. It is a bold and masterly work.

Homeric countenance being lighted with inspiration as he dictates his verses to the sound of the lyre.

This is one of the several galleries that help to make The Hague interesting and attractive. A fine collection of paintings, the work of ancient and modern masters, are stored in the house of Baron Steingracht. The most greatly prized is Rembrandt's "Bathsheba." After "Her Bath."

The beautiful woman just comes out of her bath, and is seated on a rug in a thickly wooded park. Off in the distance is seen King David, who is watching her in admiration.

Another attractive collection is found in the Municipal Museum, it includes small antiques, medals, porcelain, glass and a worthy collection of pictures.

The Dutch are as proud of their parliament buildings as of their museums.

Here the Peace Conference was held last year. The Dutch government, like our government, has two houses. The members of the Senate are housed in one building and the deputies in the other. Both of these great halls are decorated with beautiful mural frescoes, carved woods and upholstered chairs. The hall occupied by the Senate is vast. The tribune is painted in brown and goldleaf. At either end of the room is a carved chimney, with allegorical figures of "Peace" and "War."

There are few more prepossessing buildings at The Hague than the Royal Palace, which was built in the time of Stadt-holder William III. Before the palace stands a splendid equestrian statue of Prince William I, of Orange in bronze.

The pedestal is handsomely decorated with the arms of the seven provinces. Though the state rooms are rather simple, they are furnished in excellent taste. The bathroom has few that surpass it, excepting in the palace at Amsterdam. The ceiling is decorated with splendid mural paintings and the walls are set with costly marbles. The palace is surrounded by rather repetitious gardens and several fine streets. At the north end of the street begins the Williams Park, a new quarter of the city, a well-planned street, flanked on both sides with modern Dutch houses and pictureque gardens. In the center is a large imposing national monument commemorating the restoration of Dutch independence and the return of Prince William Frederick of Orange. The Prince is shown in his coronation robes, taking an oath to support the constitution.

The Royal Library is another building of considerable attractiveness and well adapted to accommodate a large reading and studying public. The library is unusually large, containing more than 500,000 volumes. There are a number of rare Bibles and prayerbooks. Another valuable collection are the coins, medals and gems, which includes some 300 rare and beautiful cameos. The finest are the head of Hercules, the bust of Bacchus and a Faun trying to steal a robe from a Bacchante.

The Hague has more fine houses than has any one city in Holland. They are nearly all of brick, and though a few of the oldest ones have strange facades and curious roofs, the newest have slanting tiled roofs, large windows of heavy polished slate and broad verandas. Most of the houses have gardens. Some of these gardens are large and filled with the beautiful flowers that have brought wealth and recognition to Holland. An other attractive feature of these houses are the verandas—they are exceptionally broad and often surround the house.

Another addition to the verandas is the summer garden or sun-parlour where the family gather for afternoon tea and take their meals in warm weather.

The exterior of these houses gives little idea of the splendor and beauty found within. The woodwork is often of costly rosewood and mahogany, and the floors so highly polished they shine like mirrors. The furniture is heavy and hand carved, and the walls are hung with fine paintings and etchings.

But the great effort the Dutch have exerted in improving the city is best illustrated in the streets. It has been no easy task to make broad and attractive streets on account of the dams which cut the city in a number of places. Whenever it has been possible they have been widened and straightened and shaded by a double row of trees.

The chief business street is the Lange Pooten, which begins near the Plein and is the continuation of the Spui straat. Besides the many shops which line both sides of the street, there are several large and fashionable hotel's, and here large crowds gather during the summer to drink coffee and promenade. Visiting to the military bands which play there nearly every evening. The finest quarter of the town is the Lange Voorhout, a square planted with trees; from here radiate three handsome streets lined with many spacious and splendid residences.

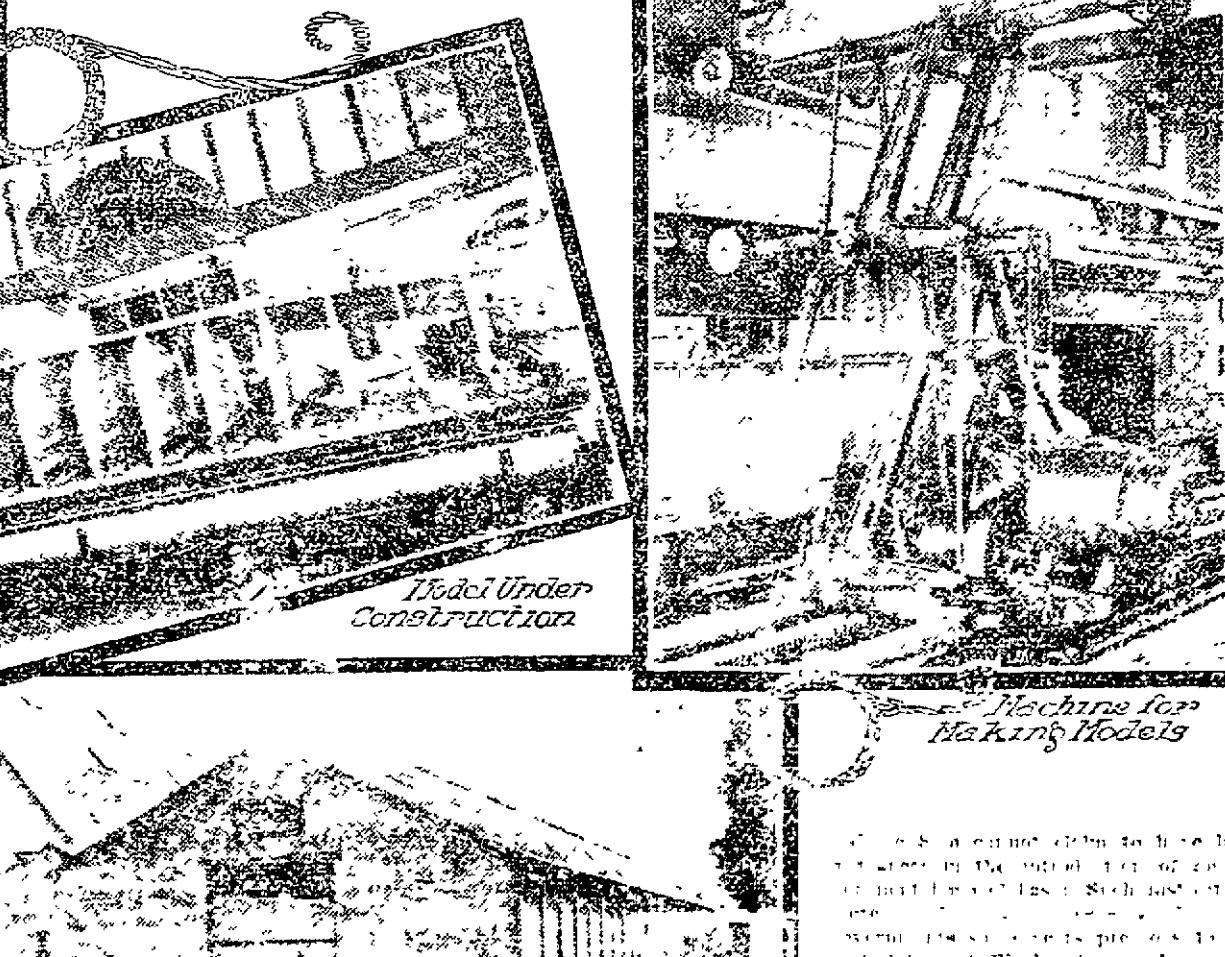

But the two streets that make the city most attractive are the boulevards that lead to the Haagsche Bosch and to Scheveningen. South of the Zoological Gardens are the drilling grounds of the garrison and a park which has many white fallow deer and other tame deer. Then the Leyden road, where are seen many of the finest residences at The Hague. It leads into the Bosch, or park like forest. It is filled with many gigantic oaks and brilliantly colored maple trees. The forest is intersected by avenues running in many directions.

Then there are splendid equestrian roads and underpasses for vehicles. It is in this forestlike park that the Hof-Tea Bosch, or House in the Woods, is seen. It is in the Orange Room of this small and attractive palace that the first peace conference was held. Though the palace is small, the rooms are furnished with exquisite taste. The most unique is the Japanese room, which contains bright-colored embroidery, plants and colorful paper.

Another handsome boulevard starts at The Hague and goes to Scheveningen. It is intersected by roadways for the trolley, horse car and carriage road. A most picturesque sight are the old fashioned horse cars patronized by the quaint Dutch fisherwomen dressed in their pictureque broads—women who prefer the simpler way of going to market. Some years ago Scheveningen was a simple fishing town but the beauty of the coast has made it a wonderful popular and fashionable summer resort. All along the road are many modern homes with beautifully arranged gardens, while in Scheveningen there are many hotels and attractive cottages and a Kursaal out on the sea, where concerts and theatrical performances are held. The quaint fisherfolk and the splendid beach have made Scheveningen, which is really a suburb of The Hague.

Fighting Uncle Sam's Warships by Models

by WALDON FAWCETT

The officials of the Navy Department at Washington are very busy just now preparing the plans for the battle ships most recently authorized as additions to the American Navy. The President Roosevelt made his memorable request to Congress for the money to build these ships it had been determined that the new fighting craft should be record-breakers in every respect. The naval experts are now heading every energy to make them come up to expectations and they have had an additional incentive to do so all previous efforts in the critical items that have recently been leveled against some of the features of our latest battleships. Spurred on by the picking of "X" in the fighting ratings that had long been regarded as perfectly perfect, the naval architects and engineers are exercising every precaution to provide for every up-to-date addition to the new mistress of the seas.

In designing warships now present day conditions Uncle Sam's Army and the assistance of an fastness regarding which the public bears almost no hand, not which is, nevertheless, one of the most important legs in our naval might. As is the experience, model ships, situated at the Washington shipyards, which is the only one where the designs are made, are being prepared for the trials of speed and maneuverability. The models are made of wood and are of various sizes, ranging from a few inches to a length of 100 feet. The models are used to test the performance of the ships in various ways, such as by testing the speed of the ship, the maneuverability, the stability, and the resistance to wind and waves. The models are also used to test the ship's resistance to impact, such as when it collides with another ship or an object. The models are also used to test the ship's resistance to fire, such as when it is hit by a shell or a torpedo. The models are also used to test the ship's resistance to water, such as when it is submerged or when it is hit by a wave. The models are also used to test the ship's resistance to air, such as when it is hit by a bullet or a bomb. SERVIA MAY DECLARE WAR

SKUTSCHINA IN SECRET SESSION AND TROOPS ARE BEING CONCENTRATED.

Believed That Russia Will Help Serbia If War is Declared—Balkan Situation Again in Muddle.

Belgrade, Serbia, Nov. 3.—Aroused by countless reports that Austrian troops are about to invade their country, the Servian Skutchina, or parliament, is in secret session today considering a declaration of war against Austria. Serbia is rapidly concentrating troops. Servian officials believe Russia will help Serbia in case of war.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3.—A message was received in official circles today from Belgrade saying there is every indication that Austrian troops are preparing for a sudden invasion of Serbia. The message warns St. Petersburg to expect news of fighting momentarily.

London, Nov. 3.—Russia's refusal to recognize the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria has again muddled the Balkan situation. Not only has Russia's attitude disturbed Europe's chancellors but it is also likely to terminate the friendship between Russia, Austria and Germany and it is likely that from now on each country will play its own game regardless of what others may do.

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system.

The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way—it's too late, the craving has secured a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrine is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if the patient will reluctantly take the treatment, Orrine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrine costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price.

Write for free booklet on "Drunkenness," mailed in sealed envelope by The Orrine Company, Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by Frank D. Hall, 10 North Side Square.

Mrs. A. J. Gordon, living on Chestnut street, Dresden, Ohio, says: "I suffered severely from a disordered condition of my kidneys. The passages of the secretions were very frequent at times and at others very scanty and painful and I was very nervous and dizzy and suffered from a constant backache. I used many different remedies but was gradually running down in health when I procured Doan's Kidney Pills.
